

On 28th September second year students of class 2h participated in the fifth edition of Translator's Day called "Hieronimki" held by the Institute of Applied Linguistics, UMCS in Lublin.

First we attended a lecture on "The importance of weak and strong forms in translation" by dr Marcin Mizak during which we learned how the forms can change the meaning of the same word. Apart from that we were also presented with some examples of homonymy and polysymy.

Next we took part in the workshops entitled "Learning stations" during which we were divided into groups to do different language tasks in English, French, German and Russian. The funniest task was the one involving translating English names of Polish cities and towns into Polish. We had a lot of fun competing against each other and most of us won prizes for completing the language tasks with high scores.

We gained memorable experience from the learning opportunities of the Translator's Day and an insight into the world of translation. We are already looking forward to the next year's sixth edition.
